

CATALYST MAGAZINE SEEKS INTERNS FOR SPRING 2020

We are looking for bright, competent interns who can work creatively with our team.

CATALYST is a monthly non-profit magazine that has served as Salt Lake City's resource for creative living since 1982. If you are looking to gain experience in a small, locally-run non-profit, and you have interest in the arts, culture, and environment, please apply.

Who we're looking for:

- Dynamic students who are both passionate about the environment, and the bigger picture around engaging the general public in these issues.
- Skilled writers, those who have a deep desire to improve on their writing skills, and who can take critical feedback gracefully.
- Curious minds with a self-starter attitude, interns who ask good questions, pay attention to detail, and look around to see what needs to be done.
- Those seeking credit (this is an unpaid internship), but will be rewarded with weekly office lunches, yoga passes, and other concert tickets as these perks are available.

What you'll do:

- Assist in environmental reporting during the 2020 legislative session, as well as various other environmentally-focused events throughout the semester.
- Review a film and/or experience at the Sundance Film Festival that has subject matter concerning climate change, health, and the natural world.
- Write & schedule Facebook and Twitter posts that link to CATALYST articles/events, as well as curate our monthly print calendar and online calendar.
- Attend and table at events that CATALYST sponsors, including (but not limited to) Farmers Markets, the Intermountain Sustainability Summit at Weber State University, the Living Traditions Festival, as well as our events: Clean Air Solutions Fair (February) and Bee Fest (June).

To Apply:

Send your resume and cover letter to sophie@catalaystmagazine.net with 3 writing samples attached (academic, blog, creative, or published works) by January 11, 2020.